If you go into this movie thinking that you're going to get an Infinity Wars part II I'm afraid you're going to be disappointed. I enjoyed the movie, but I was hoping for so much more, and yes, I know, when you go into a movie with high expectations the chances are that you're setting yourself up for disappointment, but the more I think about this movie the more I hate the direction it took.

Now... obvious mistakes aside (Capt America with the power of lightning. really. it was literally explained in Ragnarok) the way they destroyed some of the best characters was completely frustrating, Lebowski Thor. Slimey Hulk. a Thanos that you couldn't empathise with even though you knew it was wrong. meh. br> The thing is, once you introduce time travel into a movie you're going to spend the rest of your days wondering 'why didn't they just. unless it's done really intelligently, unfortunately this falls very short of that mark, and as I think about the film now, it just feels like a bit of an over emotional fan film, an MCU scrapbook of nostalgia that despite being 3 hours felt incredibly rushed.

The biggest moment in ten years of Marvel movies was 'The Snap. yet in Endgame you don't even get to see any of effect of reversing it. apart from a phone call from Hawkeye's wife. baffling.

Throughout most of this film I felt like I was watching a parody, it's something you still have to watch. and you'll probably enjoy it, just as long as you don't think about it afterwards.
