Press releases have their own effect on search engines

Press releases are easy to read, understand and write. They are also very easy to distribute and use as well. Press releases also have a lot of benefits when it comes to SEO and website ranking purposes.

Press releases can be used by businesses that want to get their message out there more quickly than they would with other methods such as emailing or posting on social media sites like Facebook or Twitter etc., which takes time but is not always appropriate either because people may not want their news posted publicly without giving them any indication of who else might read it (i'm sure we all know someone who does this).
