Forever Yours: The Ultimate Guide to Choosing a Diamond Engagement Ring

What is an engagement ring?

An engagement ring is a symbol of love, commitment and devotion. It's one of the most important gifts you will ever give your fiancé or girlfriend because it represents the start of a lifetime together. If you're thinking about proposing to your partner, it's important to know what kind of diamond engagement ring she wants!

Why do we wear diamonds?

Diamonds have been used as jewelry for centuries because they are known for their durability and beauty—and now there are several different types available in today's market that suit different styles and personalities. A woman could choose from an array of shapes like round cut stones or fancy cuts such as marquise (oval) or emerald cuts which come with unique facets throughout them; each type comes with its own unique aesthetic appeal depending on how much light passes through them at different angles during viewing angles when worn by someone else besides yourself! You can also find other types such as baguette style stones whose shape resembles toothpicks but still maintains enough weight so they don't feel cheap when worn by someone else besides yourself!
