

The Blogger Breakthrough Podcast

[00:00:04.400]

Hey Boss, welcome to the Blogger Breakthrough Podcast, I'm your host Liz Stapleton from Elizabethstapleton.com and founder of the Blogger Breakthrough Summit.

[00:00:10.970]

And today I'm actually going to take a break from the typical blogging advice you find on this podcast because today is November 3rd and in the US, there is an election. So I want to take today's episode as an opportunity to encourage you to go vote if you haven't already.

[00:00:26.480]

While I'm not going to tell you who I think you should vote for, I am going to say that local elections are just as important as the national ones. The things being protested against will typically change at a local level before there are changes at a national level. So I encourage you to educate yourself on the candidates and the issues. Typically, a quick Google search can help provide you with the resources you need to inform yourself. I wouldn't solely rely on the information that's provided on the ballots. I've found descriptions to be written in extremely biased ways in the past.

[00:00:55.160]

So do your research and go vote. I also want to note that many people have voted early or by mail. So don't let whatever the polls are saying, at whatever time you're listening to this episode, sway you from going to vote and making your voice heard.

[00:01:08.540]

The election won't really be over until all the votes are counted, which, given that there's a pandemic may be days or weeks after today. So please, just go vote! And next week I'll be back to my regular scheduled programming where you'll learn about the difference between on-site and off-site SEO.

[00:01:25.970]

I'll catch you then! Please go vote.