As a movie, this was pretty cool. So if you are NOT invested into Star Wars, and have liked all the Marvel movies, you will really enjoy this. You will appreciate all the wittiness like in Avengers, you will appreciate the emphasis on unity to beat the evil archetype, and all the cute, little, new creatures. BUT, if you are a Star Wars fan, which I identify as, you will not enjoy this movie. Why? This is a Marvel movie. Not a Star Wars movie. The last thing on the creators behind this movie seemed to be to create a Star Wars feel, so that sucks. They didn't add any incredible Star Wars duels, like we saw in Episode 6. Or Jedi fight scenes, which at least the prequels gave us. They didn't have that weird/gross factor which we got from jabba the hut, or the bounty hunter in episode 1. The things that made us love Star Wars are not in this movie. However, they are in The Mandalorian. If you're reading this that probably means you enjoy IMBD, or just want to know the Tea on the latest Star Wars. Either way, go check out The Mandalorian, cause its honestly a better Star Wars production than the last 3 movies combined. It just has that Star Wars feel that you cannot put into words. And this. this does not have it.

I must have watched a different film to the other reviewers giving it low scores. It's not a perfect film, but at 140 minutes the film zips along at a frantic pace jumping from one set piece to another with nods to the original trilogy and cameos. In a world where every piddling film is released an event, this one is an event.

The film suffers the same problem as others in all the films we don't get the scale of time and distance, every one appears to cross the galaxy with ease, but there again it's a space fantasy not a film about logistics.

I have had the privilege of seeing this series over 42 years, and yep it struggled in the middle series but can honestly say I was satisfied with this film, wether the actors can build careers outside of this film is going to be interesting.

If you are watching the film for the sake of ticking it of the list, maybe give it a miss that way the nay sayers on here can win their battle. If you want to see how this cycle ends go watch it, ignore the negativity and go along for the ridd

Stick through the credits and you get to hear John Williams score.

Disney has ruined star wars. I couldn't find much I liked about this film.
