The last airbender ost. The last airbender trailer 3. The Last airbender. The last airbender 2010. The last airbender intro. The last airbender avatar full episodes. The last airbender review. Where can I begin to review a movie with so many problems? Take the actors and the script out of the picture but leave the scenes and the action in place. Replace the actors with people who actually know how to act and immerse themselves into there role. As well as burning the original script and getting someone who actually knows how to write a script and how people would act in situations and this movie would of been 10xs better. The acting was horrendous and that is what I keep coming back to At the very start of the movie Katara the young water bender splashes her brother sokka and he is supposed to be angry at her He gets up and stomps over to her his facial expression was completely flat and his lines were delivered in and almost bored or struggling manner and the remaining actors fair no better. You may wish to blame the script but there is no excuse for the horrible acting they delivered they did not even try.

Now the script is where it really falls apart at one point Prince Zuko the man who has been chasing them all around the world arrives to capture aang during the raid on the northern water temple so What does Katara say? Oh no its the fire lords son prince zuko! Is that the first thing that comes to mind? She could of said you again? or why cant you just leave us alone? and zuko could respond The avatar is the only way I can restore my honor and you will not stand in my way ARRAG fire blast! That right there is ten times better.

And at the ending of the movie we are introduced to princess Azula she was my favorite character in the animated series and I can tell you right now from the 10 seconds of screen time she delivered I was not impressed. She has none of the evil or sinister feeling that Azula provided. Her voice sounds more like a whiny teenage girl where as Azula had more of a deep and sadistic voice and then she attempted to put on and evil smile which failed utterly. It looked like she had just got done having relations with one of the guards. This movie was horrible and if they insist on making another they better throw the idea of a sequel out and remake this pile of garbage and do it right.

Now lets get into the visual and graphical effects of the movie which were decent but failed to deliver. one of the most beautiful and awe inspiring aspects of the animated series was never the fighting IMHO. it was interesting and cool ill give it that but what made viewers tic was the land and the journey. while I admit some of the areas did look rather amazing I was left with a void and unfulfilled feeling. Apa and momo I believe are seen twice throughout the movie in full detail and they look like a complete disaster. The action scenes are also not that not very well done. in the series every movement meant something. in this movie the actors flail around as if having a convulsion only to shoot a single slow moving rock or ball of fire when they get to earth bending you will laugh trust me. Your eighty year old grandmother could effectively dodge there bending. The 3d is also a wasted feature that only serves to give you a massive headache but regardless thats probably unavoidable. I could go on and on but Id just be repeating what hundreds of others have said overall this movie is a complete disaster avoid it like the plague and spend your money on more important things like a hair cut and some cheese.

Now I realize they can't cram in 8 hours of a movie into a 2 hour film but there was not even an attempt at grasping the concept of the avatar and his friends adventure or any of the magic at all it was as if they teleported from place to place and many of scenes made little sense. and only served to confuse fans of the series and make new comers become completely lost. They also made changes to the names of the characters and every time you hear katara say Ah-nyou you will cringe have they never heard the expression don't mess with success? I suppose that should of applied to this entire movie.
