The world is divided into four kingdoms, each represented by the element they harness, and peace has lasted throughout the realms of Water, Air, Earth, and Fire under the supervision of the Avatar, a link to the spirit world and the only being capable of mastering the use of all four elements. When young Avatar Aang disappears, the Fire

Nation launches an attack to eradicate all members of the Air Nomads to prevent interference in their future plans for world domination. 100 years pass and current Fire Lord Ozai continues to conquer and imprison anyone with elemental "bending" abilities in the Earth and Water Kingdoms, while siblings Katara and Sokka from a Southern Water Tribe find a mysterious boy trapped beneath the ice outside their village. Upon rescuing him, he reveals himself to be Aang, Avatar and last of the Air Nomads.

Swearing to protect the Avatar, Katara and Sokka journey with him to the Northern Water Kingdom in his quest to master "Waterbending" and eventually fulfill his destiny of once again restoring peace to the world. But as they inch nearer to their goal, the group must evade Prince Zuko, the exiled son of Lord Ozai, Commander Zhao, the Fire

Nation's military leader, and the tyrannical onslaught of the evil Fire Lord himself

As a fan of the series I was very excited to see this movie, only to be utterly disappointed.

SPOILERS TO FOLLOW. br> For starters, the acting was really horrible. Personally I was rather annoyed by all the "controversy" surrounding the elasticities of the cast. Its a movie guys: get over it. But I think the actors they chose were too inexperienced or didn't suit the role they were meant to play. Iroh was the only exception, and even then was lacking some of the character's nuances that made him like-able. There was no character development to speak of. Katara narrates through the movie, which would have been fine, except that they were using the narration to substitute for missing scenes and character interactions. I don't want to hear her tell me "Sokka and the princess got close" I want to see it happen.

Now, I get that there was a lot of ground to cover in one film so some material is going to be excluded. But pivotal stuff shouldn't be. They were in Kyoshi, but we never met Suki. There was no Omashu, no Jet, no Roku. But what kills me is that it was only one and a half hours when it could have easily been two or two and a half.

The other thing that bothered me was Fire Lord Ozai. In book one he was this big ominous entity that you never actually saw, but was pretty intimidating. The Ozai in the film isn't intimidating in the least. The most menacing thing he does is say "Kill the moon spirit! Not impressive.

Some things I did like. The costumes weren't bad. The North Pole was beautiful. The effects were nice. Overdone, but nice. And I liked Appa.

Ultimately, I am sad and rather angry. I wish that I had waited and not spent the money to see it in theaters. Fans will be disappointed and strangers to the story will be unimpressed.
