The last airbender ending theme. The last airbender smite. To start, I will say that this movie is an epic disappointment. I am, as many are who have seen this movie, a large fan of the series. I held off seeing the movie till it came out on On-Demand. I had heard so many bad reviews, I wanted to give time for the dust to settle. I am glad I did. Much less upset for losing a couple of bucks from ordering it than what I could have dropped to see this on the big screen. Having said that I have watched the movie more than once and I do intend to watch it again.

Why oh why would I want to revisit such a horrendous nightmare? Why would I want to see a movie that did more damage to the original tale than a nuke would do to downtown London? Why would I want to watch beloved characters be stripped of their very essence and re- molded into some monopoly cutout that could be fit into most any other story? Why I would I even want to hear them give their own personal "spin" to the pronunciation of the characters names?

Why? Because it is good. Oh god, shoot me now. I have to admit it is a good movie. You will have to see it several times to even consider this point of view. Why? Because you have to get passed the fact they butchered what was a wonderful story. If you take it at its raw base, the Avatar ran away, was gone 100 years and then comes back to find the Fire Benders have had PMS for a century and moves to make it right, you might be able to find a semi decent movie among all the trash. (Though I still hope they don't try to make the second book...
